

Web.com and First Data Partner to Offer Premium Online Marketing and eCommerce Solutions

ATLANTA & JACKSONVILLE, FL (SEPTEMBER 1, 2009) - First Data, a global technology and payments processing leader, and Web.com (NASDAQ: WWWW), a leading provider of online marketing for small businesses, today announced an agreement to provide small and medium-sized businesses with secure payment processing and online marketing and eCommerce solutions.

Web.com and First Data will provide a wide array of tools to help small and medium-sized businesses find, connect and transact with new or existing customers online. Businesses can work with Web.com's team of experts to create and strengthen their Web sites through the effective use of search engine marketing, search engine optimization tools and eCommerce solutions. First Data's suite of payment processing products and services gives merchants the ability to transact payments securely both online and at the point of sale.

"Web.com has the breadth and depth of products and the expertise to improve a business's visibility online," said Souheil Badran, senior vice president and division manager for eCommerce at First Data.

"Our customers know they can depend on First Data to provide superior eCommerce tools and services. Our partnership with Web.com allows us to expand our offerings to include products that meet our small business customers' Internet marketing needs."

"By partnering with First Data, our customers have the ability to work with one of the most trusted and recognized electronic payment leaders," said David Brown, chairman and chief executive officer, Web.com. "The current economic climate has encouraged our customers to recognize the increasing importance of eCommerce and the true value they can derive from cost efficient and reliable payment processing tools. As such, we've made it a top priority to provide them with the best multi-platform, diversified payment options available."
